Hello Collectors

Welcome to the November–December edition of the Stamp Bulletin, which presents the stamp issues and collectables that conclude this year's releases. Many of these may well serve as inspiration for Christmas gift-giving.

This year's secular Christmas stamp designs present some gingerbread delicacies baked in familiar Christmas shapes. While the reasons for the association between gingerbread and Christmas are not entirely clear, baking and decorating gingerbread is something that many families enjoy at Christmas time.

The traditional Christmas stamp designs present religious-themed plaques from the 17th and 19th centuries, which were made from glazed terracotta clay, using techniques that originated in Renaissance Italy.

The bright and colourful illustrations for Christmas Island Christmas depict Santa and some wildlife enjoying the warm tropical waters.

Once again, due to the Covid-19 pandemic, those wishing to send Christmas gifts and cards are encouraged to do so in plenty of time, especially in the case of sending parcels overseas. While the release date of the 2021 Christmas stamp issues is 1 November 2021, international Christmas stamps are now on sale to assist with this process. You'll also find wonderful Christmas-themed postcards and greeting cards in this edition, which are prepaid for posting worldwide.

This edition also presents the Tokyo 2020 Australian Gold Medallists Collection, which contains the full set of Australian gold medallist stamp sheets from Tokyo 2020, as well as a single Ticket to Tokyo stamp. Our annual collection publications contain all of the gummed commemorative stamp designs released throughout the year for our Australian and Australian Territories stamp programs, as well as thematic text and striking imagery.

Lastly, I would like to take this opportunity to wish all of you a happy and safe Christmas and New Year. This has been another challenging year for individuals and communities, and your support and interest in our range of stamps and collectables is greatly appreciated. I look forward to catching up again in 2022.

The two religious Christmas stamps feature artworks made from terracotta clay and glazed in a technique first introduced in Renaissance Italy by the Florentine della Robbia family of artists. The 65c stamp shows the Madonna tenderly cradling the infant Jesus in her arms, with the Latin posuerunt me custodem (they have appointed me as guardian) inscribed below. This plaque was made in the Italian Umbrian town of Deruta in the 17th century. The rectangular plaque is in the collection of the Australian Catholic University. The popularity of glazed terracotta began to wane in the later 17th century, and it was not until the gothic revival of the 19th century that the style again became fashionable, when English and Italian firms mass-produced della Robbia styles for a popular market. The round plaque or tondo represented on the international $2.40 stamp was made in the late 19th century by Florence manufacturers Figli de Giuseppe Cantagalli. It shows a crowned Madonna as Queen of Heaven, clasping the standing Christ Child, with four cherubim in the background, encircled by a festoon of decorative leaves, fruit, pinecones and flowers. This work is held in the collection of the National Gallery of Victoria. The other three stamps reference the custom of celebrating Christmas with sugary gingerbread delicacies. Gingerbread is a sweet baked cake or biscuit flavoured with ginger and other spices. It has a very long history, with various recipes recorded in Europe for more than a millennium. In the 16th century, the retinue of Queen Elizabeth I of England included a royal gingerbread maker. The Queen would hold banquets, where the easily moulded gingerbread was playfully formed into figures representing people at her court. The association between gingerbread and Christmas is not clear. Possibly the custom arose because of the belief that spices were warming in the cold northern winter, but probably also because a gingerbread house elaborately decorated with sweets and sugary delicacies is an indulgent extravagance permitted only once a year.

Christmas island Christmas PNC (RAM)

Christmas Island is renowned for excellent snorkeling, and this festive season, equipped with fins and mask, Santa is enjoying the island's warm tropical waters. The island's distinctive, unique wildlife gather to greet their merry visitor. They include Red Crabs, Green Turtles, Red-tailed Tropicbirds, frigatebirds, a Whaleshark and assorted fish.

Christmas Island is an external Australian territory located in the Indian Ocean some 2,600 kilometres north-west of Perth. The lush, tropical island was named by English sea captain William Mynors of the East India Company, who made the first recorded sighting of the volcanic island on Christmas Day in 1643. The natural history of the island is of great importance. Christmas Island National Park, which comprises 85 square kilometers of the total landmass of 135 square kilometers, was declared in 1980. Unique vegetation and wildlife include land crab populations of world significance.

Australia Post also wishes to advise that, in keeping with guidelines for mail processing as set by the Australian Postal Corporation Act 1989, we are unable to return any currency by mail.
